DRAWN BY G. F. JAGGERS-HOOD, R.I.

Every effort has been made by private endeavour, with the Tsaritsa at the head of the movement, to provide for the Russian sick and wounded. The Red Cross Society, although not really an official institution, acquires a sort of official position from the fact that Her Majesty is president of it. Ambulance trains, field hospitals and bands of nurses have been despatched to the front to supplement the military medical service.
